1 The Legislative Decree n.231/2001

1.1 Regulation

On 8th June 2001, the Italian Legislative Decree n. 231 was issued. The Legislative Decree became law on the following 4th July titled: “The Discipline of the administrative liability of legal persons, companies and associations including those without legal status”.

The Decree has thus introduced a regime of administrative responsibility for Italian companies. This form of responsibility is equal to in substance the penal responsibility. According to this Decree it is presumed that companies are responsible for various offenses committed, in their own interest or advantage, from diverse categories of individuals:

- Directors, managers and other persons in apical position; and
- Persons subject to the management or the supervision of the persons in apical position indicated in the previous point (subordinate persons).

This is intended as an additional and not a replacement responsibility for individuals who materially carry out any illegitimate act which, therefore, is governed by common law. In any case, the responsibility of the company and that of the individual who commits an offence, are both subject to examination before a criminal court. Moreover, the responsibility of the company/body remains even when the individual materially responsible for the offence has not been identified or cannot be held liable.

The responsibility foreseen by the Decree is set also in consequence of crimes committed abroad, provided that the State of place in which the crime was committed doesn't proceed.

The liabilities foreseen by Decree 231/01 exposes companies to the risk of a range of sanctions.

The sanctions imposed on companies can take the form of either fines or disqualification, the most serious of which include:

- the suspension of licenses and concessions functional to the commission of illegal actions, a ban from dealing with the Public Administration (except for the legitimate use of a public service),
- a ban from carrying out specific business activities,
- exclusion from or cancellation of public finance, funding or subsidies, and
- a ban on advertising goods or services.

Fines are applied every time the company commits one of the offences referred to in the Decree. On the contrary, the disqualification measures can only be applied in relation to the offences specifically provided for in the Decree if at least one of the following conditions apply: (i) the company has gained a substantial advantage and the offence has been carried out by an apical subject, or by an executive figure subordinate to the management or supervision of another individual, when the offence was either carried out as a result of or assisted by serious management inadequacies; (ii) in the case of repeat offences.

The disqualification measures - in the case of incontrovertible evidence of the company's responsibility which is then confirmed and if it contains specific elements that give rise to the concrete possibility of further offences of the same nature being committed - can also be applied, on the request of the Public Prosecutor, also as a precautionary measure during the investigative process.

The company will also always face, following the sentence, the confiscation of the gains or profit from the crime (excluding the part to be returned to injured parties). When it is not possible to confiscate the assets directly deriving from the offence, the same may apply to sums of money, goods or other assets of value equivalent to the price of or gains from the offence. As a precautionary measure the seizure of such assets may be ordered, corresponding to the price of or gains from the offence or their monetary equivalent, and may be susceptible to confiscation.

In its original text Legislative Decree 231/2001 referred exclusively to a series of offences committed against Public Administration.

The article 24 and 25 of the Decree defines these offences as follow:

- misappropriation of contributions, funding or other disbursements on behalf of a public body (316 3rd criminal code);
- defrauding the State or other public body (art. 640, II para.. N.1 pen code);
- swindling for obtaining public grants (art. 640 2nd pen code.);
- information technology fraud against the State or other public body (art. 640 ter pen code.);
- corruption act for office (art. 318 pen code. Art 321 pen code),
- corruption act contrary to official duties (art. 319 pen code. Art. 321 pen code);
- corruption in judicial acts (art. 319 ter pen. Code, art. 321 pen code);
- incitement to corruption (art. 322 pen code);
- corruption of those responsible in the public service (art. 316 2nd pen code.);
- extortion (art. 317. Pen code);
- embezzlement against the State or other public bodies (art. 316 2nd pen code);

- embezzlement, extortion, corruption and incitement to the corruption of members of the bodies of the European Community and Foreign Countries (art. 322 bis pen code);
- traffic of influence (art. 346 bis pen code).

With the implementation of Directive (EU) 2017/1371, intended to combat fraud to the European Union's financial interests by means of criminal law ("PIF Directive"), the administrative (quasi-criminal) liability of companies has been furtherly extended to:

- Fraud in public contracts;
- Crimes of embezzlement and abuse of office, where the fact offends the financial interests of the European Union.

The original text was integrated by subsequent legislative measures that progressively extended the number of offences for which, if committed, companies could be held liable.

In addition to articles 24 and 25 the following were subsequently added:

- art. 24 bis (introduced by Law 48 of 18 March 2008 at the time of the ratification and execution of the European Council Convention on computer crime, drafted in Budapest on 23 November 2011) with reference to "computer crime" and "illegal data processing";

The art. 25 ter of the Decree has been extended corporate crime to include "corruption between private individuals" (art. 2635 Civil Code), providing for the administrative liability of companies under Legislative Decree 231/01 for cases referred to in paragraph three of art. 2635 of the Civil Code;

1.2 The adoption of the Model 231 to mitigate the risk of company liability

With the adoption of this document, the Company intends to specifically comply with the regulations and the principles underlying the Decree 231/2001, in addition to improving and making the existing internal control and corporate governance system as efficient as possible.

The general outline of the Decree foresees that companies must respond if they have not adopted necessary measures to prevent the illegal actions of the kind committed.

Nevertheless, article 6 of Legislative Decree 231/2001 foresees a specific form of exemption from such liability if the company can demonstrate that:

- a) the management has adopted and efficiently put in place, before the offence was committed, adequate “organisational and management models” (Model 231) designed to prevent the type of offences committed;
- b) the task of ensuring that such models operate and are observed, and that they are kept up-to date is entrusted to a Supervisory Body with independent powers to carry out initiatives and checks;
- c) the individuals who carried out offences did so by fraudulently ignoring the Model 231;
- d) there was neither insufficient nor a lack of supervision on the part of the department referred to in point b) above.

A company’s exemption from liability depends on the Court’s assessment of the adequacy of the internal organizational and control system (Model 231), at the time of the trial of the person (executive or supervised subject) materially alleged to have committed the offence.

The Decree states that the Models in which the letter a) must respond to the following requirements:

- 1. identify the activities where there is a possibility of crimes and offenses being committed (so-called a map of the area at risk);
- 2. foresee the specific protocol (procedures) concerned with planning the formation and implementation of the decisions of the company in relation to the Crimes and Offenses;
- 3. identify ways of managing financial resources in order to prevent the commission of these crimes and offenses;
- 4. the obligation to provide information to the Supervisory Body in order to monitor the application of the Model 231;

5.introduce the internal disciplinary system appropriate for punishing the lack of respect of indicated measures in the Model 231.

The same Decree foresees that the Models may be adopted, with a guarantee of the requirements stated above, on the base of the code of conduct written by the association of representatives of the communication department in the Ministry of Justice which, in consultation with relevant ministries, may state within 30 days, observations on the suitability of the Models to prevent offenses.

Finally, its expected that within the small companies, the supervision task may be undertaken directly by the managing organization.

The “exoneration” system, indicated by law, poses many questions to the interpreter be it on the dogmatic placement of the institutes operating in its field, or on the practical significance that they may have. The point of “exoneration” from responsibility on behalf of the Company passing through the judicial suitability of the internal system of organization and controls must be underlined, where the penal judge is called to begin the criminal proceedings of which the author’s matter of the offense is responsible. Therefore, the wording of the models and the organization of the Parent Company must be objective and have a positive outcome regarding the assessment of suitability. This particular final prospective requires the companies to assess the adequacy of their own procedures to the requirements of the aforementioned.

2.3 Purpose of the Model 231

ESSITY, is sensitive to the needs of assuring fair conditions and transparency in its business activities, to protect both their image and position, and the expectations of its shareholders and of their employees jobs – pursuing the implementation of the organization model and its management foreseen by the Decree.

Such an initiative is employed as a belief that the adoption of the Model 231, beyond the requirements of the Decree, indicated as optional and not obligatory, may be a useful tool used to increase the awareness of all persons working on behalf of ESSITY, until the completion of their jobs, correct and consistent behaviour, such as to prevent the risk of committing crimes and offenses.

In this regard, ESSITY underlines firstly not to tolerate offensive behaviour, of any kind regardless of purpose, in which such behaviour, even in the case whereby ESSITY could appear in an advantageous situation, they are however against ethic principles of which it intends to comply in the performance of the Company's mission.

The aim of the present Model is the implementation of the procedures already existing and the provision of structured system and set of new procedures as well as controlled activities, to be carried out even in a preventive way (control ex ante) aimed at preventing the commission of Crimes and Offenses.

In this regard it should be noted that the main attraction of the procedure currently in place is defined as "MICR" indicating the complex social activity.

In particular, by identifying Areas at Risk and their procedural consequences, the Model is proposed as a purpose to:

- determine on behalf of all those persons who work under or for ESSITY, especially in the same areas at Risk, the awareness to be able to incur, in case of violations of the provisions therein, in a passable penalties offense under criminal and administrative law, not only against it but also against ESSITY;

- reiterate that such offensive behaviour is strongly condemned by ESSITY in that (even in the case that ESSITY were to be in an advantageous situation) are inconsistent not only with the law, but also against social ethic principles of the company's mission, which they intend to follow;

- allow ESSITY, thanks to a monitoring action in the Areas at Risk, to promptly intervene in order to prevent or counteract the commission of Crimes and Offenses.

Key points of the Model are, aside from the principles previously stated:

- the activity of awareness and diffusion of behavioural rules and established procedures at all company levels;
- the map of the Areas at Risk of the Group;
- the attribution of ICC 231 of specific tasks on the effective supervision and functioning of the Model;
- to check the documentation of the operations at risk;
- to respect the principle of separation of duties;

- the definition of authoritative powers coherent with the assigned responsibilities;
- to check the companies behaviour, as well as the functioning of the Model with subsequent periodic updates (checking ex post).

2.4 The guidelines

In the design of the Model 231, ESSITY has followed the Guidelines drawn up by the Confindustria.

The fundamental points which the guidelines recognize and discuss, in the construction of the Models, are as follows:

-Identification of the areas at risk in order to identify in which company areas/sectors the commission of Crimes foreseen are possible from 231/2001;

-predisposition of a control system (through the adoption of protocol opportunities) be it reasonably able to prevent or reduce the risk that the Crime committed;

-the duty on behalf of the companies functions, particularly those identified as majorly “at risk”, to supply information to the Supervisory Board (ICC 231), on the base structured (regular reporting on the implementation of the model), be it to report abnormalities or discrepancies found in the information available.

In particular, the Guidelines identify which principal components of the internal control system of the following instruments:

- organizational system
- manual and computer procedures
- powers of authorization and signatures;
- control systems and management
- personnel communication and training;
- disciplinary mechanisms;
- Code of Ethics.

Such components of the internal control system must meet the following principles:

-verification, documentation, coherence and congruency of each “sensitive operation”: there must be an adequate documented support which consents the effective procedures of control at each moment, which attest the characteristics and the reasons for the operation and identify who has authorised, carried out, registered, verified the very operation;

-application of the principle of separation of the functions: the function that operates differently from the function that verifies and or approves the same – no one must independently manage all the phases of a process;

-documentation of controls: the control system must be able to document the performance of controls;

-to provide adequate penalty system in case of violation of the regulations, of the rules and of the procedures foreseen by the Model;

-identifying the requisites of the Supervisory Board (ICC 231) these being autonomy and independence, professional and the continuation of the action.

In the implementation foreseen in article 6 of the Decree, the task of supervision of the operation and compliance of the model, as well as support updates, is trusted to companies with autonomous powers of initiative and control, formed by a number of 2 persons, of who nominate and are delegated to the Administrative Council in the approval office of the present Organisational Model, which takes on the role of Supervisory Board (ICC 231).

3 The structure of the Model 231

3.1 Introduction

The model 231 is made up of a General Part and of 17 Parts (called “Special Parts”) which refer to the diverse typology of crimes included in the Decree no. 231/2001.

The General Part includes the description of:

- the Essity’s internal control system with specific reference to the general controls able to efficiently contrast the commission of crimes;
- the composition and functioning of the Internal Control Committee 231;
- the initiative taken to favour the diffusion of the model 231 in the corporate context and the training activities of personnels;
- the disciplinary system and the measures to be taken, in case of a failures to comply with the requirements of the model.

OMISSION

The model is drawn up also based on the information ESSITY receives by the Parent Company.

An integrating part of the model is the Code of Ethics attached, specifying that:

- The same is written up on the basis of general guidelines, and remains the task of the present Organisational Model of regulating particular aspects
- The code of ethics represents an instrument adopted in an autonomous way and susceptible of applications in general terms, on behalf of ESSITY and of the group to which it belongs, in order to express the principle of company ethics, which ESSITY and the Group recognize as their own and of which we claim to observe on behalf of all personnel (employees, administrators and collaborators with various titles), as well as third parties who receive assignments from ESSITY (for example, consultants) or who have relations with ESSITY of various titles (for example suppliers)
- The model instead responds to specific requirements contained in the Decree, designed to prevent the commission of particular types of crimes that, having been apparently committed in the interest or advantage of ESSITY, may lead to its administrative responsibility, based on under the provisions of the Decree.

OMISSION

3.2 The inspiring principles of the model 231

In the predisposition of the Model 231 ESSITY has taken into account the existing procedures and control activities already applied in the Group and in the Company.

The existing control activities are part of the Model 231 as they contribute to the offenses prevention and to the legal functioning of the processes involved in the Areas at Risk.

These activities include:

1. the corporate governance rules adopted in transposition of the Code of conduct of the companies listed and corporate legislation and relevant regulation ;
2. the Code of ethics;
3. the internal control system;
4. the call back procedure MICR;
5. all other documentation related to system control within the Group.

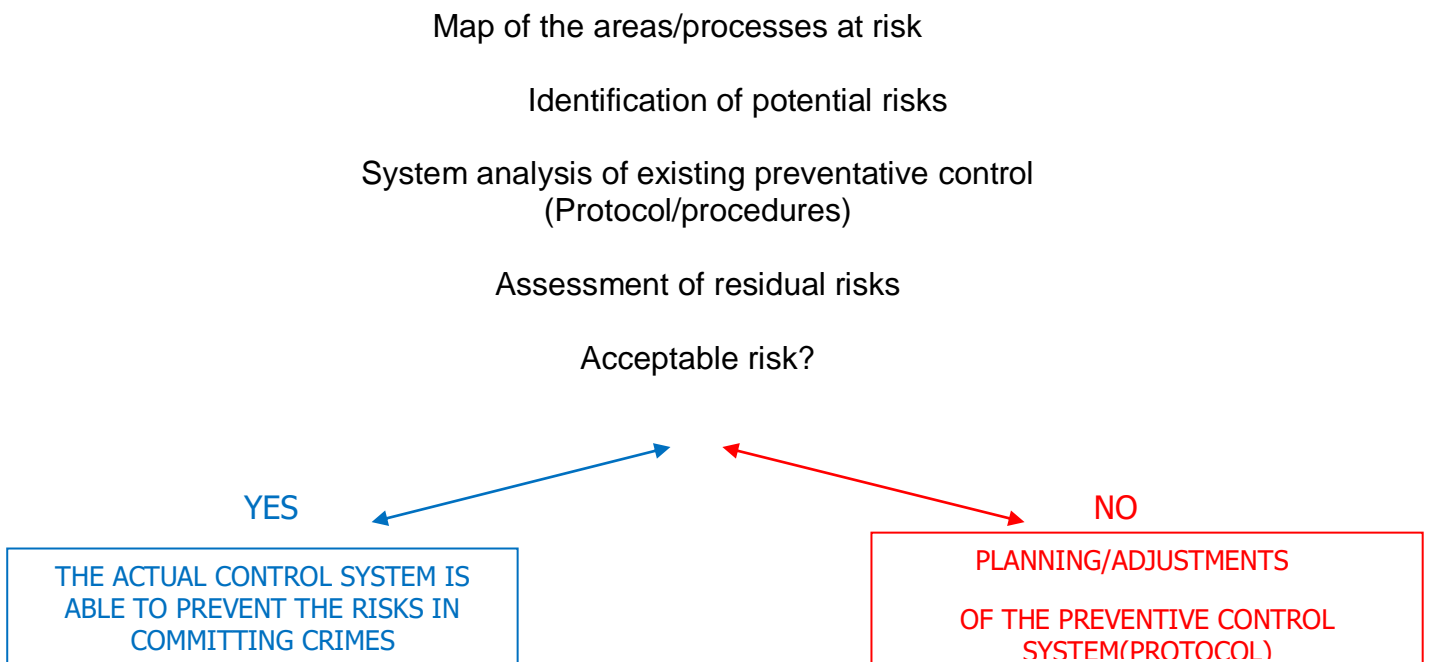

MODIFICATIONS AND INTEGRATION OF THE MODEL

The present Model being an “act issued by the manager” (in accordance with the requirements of art. 6, para. first, lett.to the Decree) and the subsequent amendments and additions of substance of the model are the responsibility of ESSITY’s board of directors.

OMISSION

4 The design of a preventive internal control system

In planning the control system capable of preventing risk of Crimes committed in line with the requirements of 231/2001, ESSITY has performed a series of activities adopting the flow for the Management of risk reported as follows:

IDENTIFYING POTENTIAL RISKS

those at risk, ESSITY has carried out a preliminary analysis in the context of business processes which could result from potential cases of the crime provided for in the Decree Lgs. 231/2001.

The elements considered were:

- organisational structure and corporate branch network – size and economic sector
- productive areas
- supply of goods and services to P.A.

a) CONSTITUENT ELEMENTS OF THE MODEL

In accordance with the Guidelines, the qualifying elements have been defined as general constituent elements of the present Model:

- the company organizational system (ESSITY Organigram);
- the company's internal procedures and in particular those defined in quality, safety and environmental systems;
- the Group procedures issued by the headquarter;
- the Key Internal Control Requirements;
- the system of delegation of powers of attorney existing;
- the system of communication to and training of personnel;

Starting with ESSITY's organigram, it's the Board of Director's task, in collaboration with the Managers and individual functions/divisions/geographic areas, as well as with the help of legal advisors, to identify the major areas exposed at risk, the commission of various crimes under the Decree.

By identifying the areas at risk and the subsequent implementation of procedures (protocol), in the special part committed to each of them, the model proposes to provide a structured and organic system, which consents ESSITY to promptly intervene to prevent or counteract the commission of crimes in the same areas.

The most relevant components of the preventive control system are:

-the code of ethics, which defines the internal regulation system, aimed at planning the formation and the implementation of decisions made in ESSITY, in relation to risks – crime prevention, to establish general guidelines, to which disciplinary reference must be made and operating modes to be adopted in the sensitive sectors

- the adoption of a formal organization system, using tools (company organigram, procedures, reports, etc) suitable to satisfy the requirements of :
- Knowledge of internal organizational mechanisms of ESSITY
- formal definition of roles with identification of tasks within each function
- clear definition of organizational powers, which must be coherent with assigned responsibilities and with the subsequent reporting lines
- clear definition of powers of authorization and signature through a system of delegation of power of attorney, to sign corporate documents, thus ensuring a clear and transparent representation of the process of training and implementation of decisions
- the adoption of the precise procedures, manual and computerized
- identification of management processes and control delegated financial resources in the areas at risk.

Description of offenses

Regarding the present Special Part, following is a brief description of crimes covered by and indicated in the art. 24 and 25 of the Decree (following the Crimes in relation to P.A).

- Embezzlement of the State (art. 316 2nd pen. Code)

Such cases are set up against anyone, outside the Public Administration, having obtained grants or funding contributions by another public body or by the European Community to promote initiatives aimed at creating works or carrying out activities of public interest not assigned for this purpose (the behaviour is to have distracted even partially, the amount obtained without detecting that the activity programmed will still be held).

Taking into account that the time consumed of the offense coincides with the implementation phase, the offense can also occur in relation to funding already obtained in the past and now is not intended for the purpose to which it was granted.

- Misappropriation of delivery to the detriment of the State (art.316 3rd criminal code)

Such cases are set up against anyone, through the use of presentation of false documents or statements or showing things that are untrue or by omission of required information, achieves unduly, for themselves or for others, contributions, loans, facilitated mortgages or other payments of the same type, however denominated, granted or paid by the State, by other Public companies or by the European Community.

In this case, contrary to the point stated previously (art. 316 2nd), nothing points to the provision being made, due to the offense occurring with respect to the act which art. 640 2nd pen.cod (aggravated fraud for obtaining public funds), in the sense that this is set up only in cases where the conduct did not constitute the offense of which latter provides.

- extortion (art. 317 pen. Code)

Such cases are set up against public officials or a representative of the public service, abuse of his position or powers, forcing or inducing someone else to give or to promise him or a third party unfairly, money or other utilities. This offense is susceptible to an application merely residual in the case considered by the Decree, in particular, this form of crime could be seen in the assumption that a company member of a society contributes to the crime of a public official, takes advantage of this position, requests a third party that which is not due (even if such behaviour results in some was advantageous for the company or may find an interest in the same).

-An act of Corruption or conflicting acts with their official duties

The behaviour of the public officials will manifest itself be it in the fulfilment of a duty (for example the acceptance of money in order to ensure the award of a tender), or be it an act contrary to his duties (for example acceptance of money to ensure the award of a tender). This crime differs from extortion, from corrupt and corrupting because there is an agreement aimed at achieving mutual benefit, which bribery in the private sector undergoes the conduct of the public official or the assigned public servant.

- Corruption in judicial acts (art. 319-3rd pen.code)

Such cases are set up against those who promote or damage a part in a judicial process (civil, penal or administrative), corrupting a public official (not only a magistrate, but also a chancellor or other official). This case is undertaken to obtain an advantage for the Company that doesn't necessarily have to be a part of the proceedings.

- Incitement to corruption (art. 322.pen.code)

Such cases are set up against whoever offers or promises money or other utilities to a public official or assigned public servant who plays the public employee to induce him to do, omit or delay an act of his office or to do an act contrary to his duties, and such offer is not promised or accepted.

- fraud (art. 640 pen.code)

Such cases of crime are set up against anyone with artifice or deception, inducing someone in error, power of attorney to himself or others for unfair profit. The penalty is increased in the case where the crime is committed detrimental to the State or to another public Company. Such a crime may come to fruition for example in the case in which in the preparation of documents or data for participation in tendering procedures, will provide P.A with false information in order to obtain the award of the tender.

- Aggravated fraud for obtaining public funds (art. 640-2nd criminal code)

Such cases are set up against the case where the fraud has been put into place to achieve financial contributions improperly subsidized loans or any other funds of the same type however denominated, granted or paid by the state of other public bodies or of the European Community. Such cases may occur if one is involved in deception or communicating false information or preparing false documentation, to obtain public funding.

- Computer fraud (art. 640-3^d criminal code)

Such cases are set up where altering in any way the performance of the computer or computer system or data Intervention without rights in any way, information or program content in the computer or computer system or to the relevant person, power or attorney or others unjust profit with other damages. In practice, the crime may be integrated when once funding has been obtained, should the computer system be violated to include an amount for loans greater than the funding obtained legitimately.

- Traffic of influence (art. 346-2nd criminal code)

Such cases are set up where using one's influence in government or connections with persons in authority to obtain favours or preferential treatment for another, usually in return for payment.

- Public procurement-related crimes (art. 353 and 353-bis of the criminal code)

These crimes concern bid rigging and interference in the tender preparation process in a procurement action which enables companies to submit non-competitive bids. They can be performed by firms in an orchestrated act of collusion, or by officials and firms acting together. This form of collusion is illegal. It is a form of price fixing and market allocation, often practiced where contracts are determined by a call for bids, for example in the case of government construction contracts.

1. THE CRIMES

This Special Part is referred to the environmental crimes according to the provision as per art. 25-undecies of Lgs. D. 231/2001.

The legislative decree dated 7th July 2011 no. 121 has arranged the addition of art. 25-undecies Environmental crimes to Legislative Decree no. 231/2001, which introduces a new catalogue of crimes, involving the liability of entities. It includes the following cases:

1. Water pollution
2. Waste
3. Recovery of polluted sites
4. Air pollution
5. International trade in extinguishing animals and vegetables (the so-called Washington Convention dated 3rd March 1973)
6. Ozone
7. Pollution caused by vessels
8. New cases of environmental crimes introduced by lgs. d. no. 121/2011

As a consequence, the areas that may - even abstractly only - involve a possible environmental crime according to this rule shall be considered as "risky" areas and supervised, apart from any evaluation on the concrete possibility of committing crimes.

In general, the crimes considered by Legislative Decree 231/2001 are fraudulent, i.e. intentionally committed by the subject with that specific purpose and the Organisational Model is intended to relieve the Entity of any liability if the people who have committed the crime have acted by fraudulently eluding the said model.

On the contrary, the crimes considered in this Special Part are culpable, i.e. the result of the subject's negligence, imprudence or inexperience. As a consequence, the Organisational Model is intended to relieve of any liability by introducing provisions that cause the Addressees to behave in compliance with environmental procedures (without any intention of damaging the environment), in combination with the obligations of supervision according to the Organisational Model.

This Special Part is intended to:

- identify and describe the criminal cases in violation of the environmental rules, for which ESSITY is held to be liable from an administrative viewpoint if they are committed by corporate subjects in the interest or to the advantage of the Company;

- specify the "principles of conduct" and the procedures directors, managers and employees as well as ESSITY's advisors and partners (Addressees in general) are required to observe for the correct enforcement of the model, in terms of environmental crimes;
- supply the Supervision Board and the people in charge of the company's functions with the information necessary for controlling, monitoring and auditing.
